Star Scientific Comments on Roskamp Institute's Plans to Conduct Human Alzheimer's Clinical Trials Using a Compound (RCP-006) Developed by Rock Creek Pharmaceuticals, Inc.

Download Image

GLEN ALLEN, Va., Oct. 7 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Star Scientific, Inc. (Nasdaq: CIGX) has issued the following comment by Paul L. Perito, Rock Creek Pharmaceuticals' Chairman and CEO:

(Logo: <http://www.newscom.com/cgi-bin/prnh/20090317/STARSCIENTIFICLOGO>)

(Logo: <http://photos.prnewswire.com/prnh/20090317/STARSCIENTIFICLOGO>)

"We are gratified that the Roskamp Institute, a highly credentialed scientific foundation, has made a significant medical discovery that we believe holds the potential for creating a therapy that could play a role in alleviating the scourge of Alzheimer's Disease. We are equally grateful that our talented scientific and medical team, inspired by the creativity of our parent company's founder, Jonnie R. Williams, has developed a compound, RCP-006, which the Roskamp Institute believes merits human clinical trials. We trust that these trials will determine the effectiveness of RCP-006 in treating this debilitating disease.

Star Scientific has acted expeditiously to protect our company's intellectual property rights and, in that regard, has filed patent applications with the PTO relating to the formulation of the RCP-006 compound and its multiple uses.

On April 7, 2010, Star Scientific announced that it had finalized a Research and Royalty Agreement with the Roskamp Institute affiliate, SRQ BIO, LLC. To date, extensive pre-clinical research has been conducted under that agreement."

Jonnie will be the only one attending the meeting. Jonnie spoke with the Governor recently about a new product that Star Scientific, Inc. is developing that has the potential to save Virginia citizens money on health care. The Governor told Jonnie he needs to speak to Dr. Hazel in reference to this. Jonnie said it shouldn't take anymore than an hour. Again, Thank you for the meeting on such short notice.

Roskamp Institute to Begin Human Alzheimer's Clinical Trials With a Natural Compound in Tobacco

SARASOTA, Fla., Oct. 7 /PRNewswire-USNewswire/ – Today the Roskamp Institute said that it is pleased to announce that it will soon begin clinical trials of RCP-006, a compound found in tobacco, for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease. The compound was developed by Rock Creek Pharmaceuticals, a subsidiary of Star Scientific in Virginia, and made available to Roskamp through its affiliate, SRQ Bio, LLC.

In laboratory tests with cells, the compound, RCP-006, a natural product, inhibits inflammation and the production of amyloid, both of which cause Alzheimer's disease. Previous studies have shown that certain tobacco components may be protective against Alzheimer's disease, but the mechanism was unknown and the negative effects of smoking and tobacco use outweigh these positive benefits. RCP-006, one of the many compounds found in tobacco, is believed to be responsible for some of the positive medicinal effects of smoking and tobacco use. In addition to the new clinical trials, Roskamp scientists are working with researchers at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine for other medical applications of RCP-006. RCP-006 is found in the Solanaceae plant family that includes tomatoes, peppers and eggplant, but RCP-006 is very prevalent in tobacco. Roskamp Institute Director, Dr. Michael Mullan, said, "It's ironic that a compound with the potential medical benefits of RCP-006 was hidden in tobacco."

Alzheimer's disease is impacting 5.3 million people in the United States and women have higher risk of getting this devastating disease than men. The economic burden of Alzheimer's in the U.S. is estimated to be $172 billion annually.

The Roskamp Institute is a non-profit organization devoted to understanding causes and finding cures for neuropsychiatric and neurodegenerative disorders. The Institute utilizes a broad range of scientific approaches to understanding the causes of and potential therapies for these disorders with an emphasis on Alzheimer's disease. For more information, please call (941) 752-2949.

SRQ Bio, LLC, a for-profit affiliate of the Roskamp Institute, has a financial interest in Star Scientific. In April 2010, Star Scientific issued to SRQ Bio, LLC 100,000 shares of common stock in a private placement. In addition, in March 2010, Robert Roskamp, the trustee of the Roskamp Institute, in an individual capacity, purchased shares of Star Scientific stock valued at $1 million, and was issued a matching warrant for an equal number of shares, as part of a private placement transaction.

Jonnie,

I enjoyed meeting with you this morning and look forward to receiving the information from you regarding the clinical trials and other advancements of Antabloc. As you know, it is necessary for us to make policy recommendations and decisions off of sound data, I am grateful that you are making strides to validate the incredible anecdotes and stories that result from your work. At times I found myself drifting to excitement thinking about my father, who suffers greatly from Ankylosing Spondylitis (severe form of arthritis). Through Embrel he has regained use of his neck and back, but not without the significant side effect of a compromised immune system. It thrills me to think that within his lifetime there is a possible method to alleviating the significant pain without costly side effects.

I will continue to work alongside of the First Lady as we identify how best to move forward.

Thank you for your time today,

Hi Elaina,

Jonnie will be the only one attending the meeting. Jonnie spoke with the Governor recently about a new product that Star Scientific, Inc. is developing that has the potential to save Virginia citizens money on health care. The Governor told Jonnie he needs to speak to Dr. Hazel in reference to this. Jonnie said it shouldn't take anymore than an hour. Again, Thank you for the meeting on such short notice.

Golf endorsement

Pro golfer Fred Couples is now promoting an anti-inflammatory drug produced by Henrico County-based Star Scientific.

The 1992 Masters champ has signed up to endorse Anatabloc.

Couples will wear the Anatabloc logo on his shirts at every tournament in which he competes.

Endorsements like these are a big deal for companies because product logos are prominently featured on TV broadcasts and replays are often beamed around the world.

The brand also benefits from being associated with a player of Couples' stature.

Along with winning the Masters, he was named PGA Tour Player of the Year twice. He's won 21 tournaments and about $25 million in his career, according PGA Tours official website.

Star Scientific's Rock Creek Pharmaceuticals subsidiary developed two dietary-supplement products: Anatabloc, which reduces inflammation, and CigRx, which may ease smokers' cigarette cravings, the company said. Star Scientific also makes alternative smokeless tobacco products.
